

Fighting the System Alone

Insurance Gaps Push Caregivers to the Brink

Over

61%

of caregivers are left exposed by the

'hygiene blindspot.'

Families report that insurance won't cover basic care items, such as diapers and bathing supplies.

77% of caregivers enrolled in Medicaid are forced to stack multiple government assistance programs to keep their households afloat.

Fueled by assistance.

Nearly

40%

of caregiving households must rely on food stamps to eat.

50%

depend on Supplemental Security Income (SSI) just to survive day-to-day.

1 in 5

caregivers are operating completely solo, managing intense medical and emotional labor.

No help

No backup

For over

41%

of caregivers,

profound isolation

and the feeling of being entirely unsupported is the single greatest emotional strain they face.

For nearly 30%

of caregivers, the biggest emotional drain is the constant fight against complex healthcare insurance systems.

Basic human dignity shouldn't be a luxury.
