

Incontinence Conditions

Incontinence may resolve with age, development, and maturation; however, for others, incontinence may be something with which they struggle throughout their life.

Parents may not realize that urinary incontinence can be quite common in children that have been diagnosed with certain medical conditions and/or are developmentally delayed, including but not limited to the below.

- Overactive Bladder
- Cerebral Palsy
- Autism
- Developmental Delay
- Down Syndrome
- ADHD
- Neurogenic Bladder
- Epilepsy
- & Many More

What Are The Requirements For Kids?

In order to qualify for diapers, pull-ups, and other incontinence supplies through Aeroflow Urology, your patient needs:

- ✓ To be aged 3 or 4 (depending on the state the child lives in) or older.
- ✓ Have incontinence, or are not potty trained, due to an underlying medical condition (Autism, Down Syndrome, etc.)
- ✓ An accurate record of diagnostic information pertaining to the underlying condition, as well as to any other medical diagnoses.
- ✓ A signed medical necessity letter or prescription from you, their healthcare provider, within the last 12 months.

PROVIDER TIP

If you are unsure of the underlying medical condition, please include the patient's medical history and demographics sheet. Aeroflow will review based on your state's Medicaid Coverage Guidelines.

The Solution to Incontinence Care

How Aeroflow Urology Works

Free incontinence supplies and support for the patients you care about.

Diapers and pull-ups are items of necessity for kids struggling with delayed potty training or ongoing incontinence. However, these products can be expensive, and the lack of accessibility to affordable incontinence products hinders these children from leading healthy and fulfilling lives.

Typically requiring over eight changes per day, the cost of maintaining children's hygiene by purchasing new diapers or pull-ups can cost more than $61 each week, a major financial burden for many families.

For families on Medicaid:

70% have reported that they have struggled to afford incontinence supplies

43% have had to keep their child in the same diaper for an extended amount of time to reduce the number of products they are having to purchase

Aeroflow Urology is committed to helping children across the United States receive their incontinence products at no cost through their Medicaid policy.

Products Just For Your Patients

At Aeroflow Urology, we proudly offer high-quality products from leading brands – all at no cost through their insurance plan.

DIAPERS

Diapers include two tabs that allow for easy changing, especially for children with limited mobility. The tear-away sides provide a more hygienic removal.

PULL-UPS

Pull-ups, available in both pediatric and youth sizes, are a great transitional product for children with incontinence.

SUPPLEMENTAL PRODUCTS

Aeroflow Urology also offers a wide selection of supplemental products to help manage incontinence, including wipes, gloves, and underpads.

PUTTING THE PATIENT FIRST

Our Continence Care Specialists will work with your patients to find the best products for their specific needs, and provide them with samples to ensure we get it right!
