What Is Toilet Mapping?

Bathroom Maps: A Public Health Issue

What is Toilet Mapping?

Toilet mapping is the practice of mapping public restrooms so people can easily find them.

Did you know?

Under Ally's Law, if you have a medical condition that requires urgent bathroom access, businesses can't deny you their employee restroom.

Individuals who:

- Are pregnant
- Over the age of 65
- Have a condition such as IBD, IBS, or incontinence

are more likely to plan their day around restroom locations.

Toilet mapping is a public health issue.

Research shows that poor or limited access to restrooms can lead people to delay urination, a risk factor for UTIs.

On average, the U.S. has only

8 public toilets

per 100,00 people.

Mississippi and Louisiana are considered "toilet deserts," with just 1 public restroom per 100,000 people.
